

The Faraday Institute Courses in Science and Religion St Edmund's College, Cambridge

The Faraday Institute offers informed and intellectually rigorous courses on the relationship between science and religion delivered by speakers eminent in their own disciplines and in this inter-disciplinary field. Fees for students and those in post-graduate training are heavily discounted and bursaries are available for delegates from low-income countries.

Short Course 3: Science and Religion for Church Leaders 7 – 9 November 2006, Wolfson College, Cambridge

This course aims to equip church leaders to answer some of the questions about science and religion which they might well face during the course of their ministry. Are science and religion in conflict? How does one interpret the early chapters of Genesis? What do science and religion say about the human person and how are ethical issues raised by science to be handled?

Speakers: Revd. Dr John Polkinghorne KBE FRS,
Dr Graeme Finlay, Prof. John Bryant, Revd Margot Hodson, Dr Gordon Wenham, Prof. Colin Humphreys FIM FInstP.

For more details, including eligibility, application forms and details about discounts and bursaries, visit www.faraday-institute.org or contact: The Faraday Institute for Science and Religion, St Edmund's College, Cambridge, CB3 0BN, UK.

Tel 01223 741281 Fax 01223 741285