Exploring issues about serving God in our workplaces.

The "Called to Serve" course starts in September and offers a level of learning, growth and discipleship-development for core church members which goes beyond what can be provided in most churches. The course has run for 10 years now, and is proving to be very effective. It is a key part of the Carlisle Diocese's emphasis on growing disciples and developing vocations to mission and ministry in the church and the world. It can refresh and re-inspire key leaders who may be dry or exhausted.

Here is what some recent course members have said about "Called to Serve":

This course is the "blue touch paper" to fire us up & send us out. I for one will never be the same.

A great course - I look forward to every session & feel energized by it.

I've discovered so much about myself, my gifts, & what God is calling me to do and be.

My faith in Christ now makes more sense to me - more relevant, much more precious.

I've learnt that nobody is too young or old to be helpful to God. Best experience of my life!

I can talk about God more freely & openly now, and prayer is more meaningful to me.

The support & friendship in the discussion groups is tremendous.

It has unlocked a vast & fascinating treasure trove of knowledge for me.

Excellent leadership and course materials: it's participative, thought-provoking and enlightening.

Now I view the Bible through new eyes and I keep relating it to present-day situations.

Bishop James is one of the speakers on the course.

There will be three course venues this coming year: Carlisle, Kendal and Workington.

“Called to Serve” consists of 18 meetings spread over September 2015– July 2016 (3 Saturdays and 15 weekday evenings, fortnightly in term time).
